IASC 1P02 Final Website Write-Up

For my final assignment in this course, I wanted to make a website that honoured an idol of mine and was someone who I could find a lot of information on, hence why I chose to make a website for Danny DeVito. When thinking of the colour scheme for the website, I wanted the website to have a modern and professional theme, so I went with black and white as the colour scheme. I went with this more simplistic theme because Danny DeVito is a very colorful person so any pictures of him on the website will contrast with any other colour scheme than black or white. I also researched other celebrities' websites and they all followed a similar theme of darker colours with white highlights.

I decided on "About Danny", "Filmography" and, "Gallery" as the 3 different HTML pages because many of the other websites that I looked to for inspiration had similar pages and I think that these 3 topics cover Danny DeVito's persona the best. For the main/about page, I decided to have a large picture of Danny DeVito with his name and occupation on the image. I couldn't find an image online of what I wanted so I used GIMP to photoshop the image to look the way I wanted. I put the twitter feed on the main page because it shows what Danny DeVito is currently up to and fits well beside the paragraph talking about his personal life. For the twitter feed, I got the code from https://publish.twitter.com/#.

For the filmography page, I decided to put the lists of Danny DeVito's major acting/directing/producing roles because it shows how talented he is and how much work he has done in his career. I went with a dashed border for those lists to break up the page and make the lists stand out. I decided to embed 3 YouTube videos into the page because it's an easy way to learn a lot about who Danny DeVito is and the work he has done throughout his career. I got the code for the embedded YouTube videos from https://www.youtube.com.

For the gallery page, I decided with a manual slideshow because personally, I don't like automatic slideshows on websites because they don't allow you to take your time to look at the photos. The photos that I chose for the slideshow I think best represent Danny DeVito's personality and how his looks have changed throughout his career. I got the code for the slideshow from https://www.w3schools.com/w3css/w3css_slideshow.asp. I decided to put my name on the footer of the website because I wasn't sure what else to put on the footer and I figured I should put my name somewhere on this assignment.
